Ania's own real estate investments deepen her knowledge of achieving financial freedom. She is committed to educating clients on smart investments and market trends, valuing long-term, partnership-oriented relationships.

Two paths. One table.

Every team has an origin story. Ours started with a business card, not a listing, and it's shaped the way we work with buyers ever since.

How We Met

Before Michael was Ania's business partner, he ran a marketing firm, and Ania hired it. She became his very first real estate client, back when he was building strategy decks, not writing offers. He learned this business the way it's actually learned: shoulder to shoulder with someone who was already great at it, deal after deal. Along the way, he's also bought four homes of his own. He remembers exactly how each one felt: the first, the second, the third, and now the fourth, which is exactly the kind of memory you want sitting across the table from you.

Where Ania Comes From

Before AMRE, Ania spent years as the single most trusted advisor to a private residential investor, the person he called before every purchase, every exchange, every small multifamily deal. It's where she learned to move fast without moving carelessly, structure a clean transaction, and read a deal the way most people read a room.

How Deals Actually Get Done

The top agents on the Westside all know each other. We're a tribe, whether we admit it or not. A real number of deals get made in a five-minute conversation in the office, sometimes before a single photo has been taken for the listing. That network took years to build. The moment you work with us, it's working for you too.

"Ania said this one is it." We hadn't even stepped inside.

More than one buyer has trusted that sentence enough to go deep into escrow on it. (She's also said "this one is not it," and been right just as often.)

WE OBSESS OVER OUTCOMES

Not just the deal, but how you're going to feel about it. We could tell you that. Or you could just check the reviews. See page 20.

Guiding you home.

Buying a home is one of the most emotionally and financially significant decisions most people will make. We must represent you and your best interests. PREPARING FOR PURCHASE

Steps 01–05 set your foundation: understanding your goals, locking in financing, and finding the right home to write an offer on.

CONTRACT TO CLOSE

Steps 06–10 carry you from signed contract through inspections, financing, and closing, to keys in hand.

Every transaction moves at its own pace. This map is a guide, not a guarantee. We'll walk each step with you and adjust as your search and escrow require.

Preparing for purchase.

01 Buyer Consultation

First, we'll sit down over coffee, get to know each other, and figure out how we can best help you find the right home. And don't worry, Michael always knows the perfect coffee spot!

02 Buyer Representation Agreement

We will create a mutual business agreement to ensure transparency. This document outlines our obligations, term length, compensation, termination, exclusivity, representation, and property criteria. Once we agree on the terms, you'll need to sign the agreement before we can show or send you any properties.

03 Get Pre-Approved

If you're financing your purchase, getting pre-approved is an important first step. We can connect you with trusted lenders and loan brokers, or you're welcome to use your own bank. A pre-approval strengthens your offer and helps you understand your down payment, closing costs, and estimated monthly payment.

Finding & securing your home.

04

Find Properties That Meet Your Criteria

Using Compass Collections, a detailed CMA, and reverse prospecting to connect with agents who may have upcoming listings, we'll uncover every property that meets your criteria, both on and off the market.

05

Submit & Negotiate Offer

Once we find the right home, we will create a competitive offer, which includes the price and any additional terms such as waived contingencies or closing timeline. We will guide you through the decision-making process to ensure you are confident with our offer.

06 Sign Contract

This is the exciting part: you're taking real steps toward owning your new home. Your offer includes the purchase price, closing date, escrow company, and earnest money deposit. Once both you and the seller agree and sign, you'll be under contract and one step closer to getting your keys.

“We'll guide every offer.”

Home Inspection, Disclosures, Reports & Repairs

We will coordinate all home inspections within the agreed timeline. We'll review disclosures and the title report, allowing you to approve or negotiate credits and repairs. Before closing, schedule a final walk-through to verify the property's condition and completed repairs.

08

Loan & Appraisal

If you're obtaining financing, your lender will request financial documents like bank statements, tax records, and pay stubs. You will have a mortgage contingency period to secure a commitment. After reviewing your documents, your lender will issue a Clear-to-Close and send the file to the title company. An appraisal will also be done on the property.

09

Closing

Final documents are signed, closing costs and earnest money are settled through escrow, and funds are disbursed to the seller. Once the deed is recorded with the county, ownership officially transfers to you. You're a homeowner.

10

Welcome Home

Keys and access are transferred, utilities are set up in your name, and your home warranty (if applicable) is activated. We'll stay just a call away for anything you need as you settle in. Congratulations!

Finding the right spot.

Every city says location matters. In Los Angeles, it's the whole game. The right house on the wrong block will underperform the right block with an imperfect house, almost every time. And here, "location" can change by the mile, the street, even which side of a single zip code you land on.

One Zip Code, Two Different Worlds

Nowhere is this truer than school boundaries. Across the Westside, it's common for a single zip code to split quietly into more than one school attendance area: two homes a few blocks apart, same freeway exit, same mail carrier, entirely different assigned schools. It's one of the most common surprises we see catch buyers off guard, and one of the first things we verify before you fall in love with a listing.

Decades on the Westside

We've built our careers here: Beverly Hills, Bel Air, Santa Monica, Venice, Pacific Palisades, Mar Vista, Culver City, West Adams. We know which blocks are quiet after 6pm, which streets back up at pickup time, which HOAs are a headache, and which "up-and-coming" claims actually hold up over time. That kind of knowledge never shows up in a listing photo. It shows up in the questions we ask before you ever write an offer.

More Than a Map

Choosing a location is about more than school boundaries and commute times. It's knowing where you'll actually spend your Saturday morning. That's what Haps in Los Angeles, our sister guide to living in LA, is for: the coffee shop worth the walk, the market, the trail, the thing happening this weekend. Ask us. We probably know the answer before you finish asking.

“The right house on the wrong block will always underperform.”

NEIGHBORHOOD SPOTLIGHT · BRENTWOOD 90049

A day in Brentwood.

Canyon trails at dawn, the coast by sunset, and a village main street in between. Here's what an ordinary Tuesday in 90049 actually looks like, so you can picture yourself in it before you tour a single home.

6:30

AM

Trailhead before the traffic

Westridge-Canyonback Wilderness Park starts at the top of the hill. Ridge views to the ocean and back to the city, and you're home before the first school bell.

8:00

AM

The San Vicente median

The grass median under the coral trees runs from Brentwood toward Ocean Avenue. It's the neighborhood's unofficial running track, dog walk and morning catch-up.

9:30

AM

Coffee at the Country Mart

The red barn on 26th Street has anchored Brentwood since the 1940s. Coffee, the courtyard, a few errands, and a familiar face or two.

11:00

AM

Art on the hill

The Getty Center sits right in the neighborhood. General admission is free; reserve parking and spend an hour in the gardens.

Lunch to golden hour.

1:00

PM

Lunch on San Vicente

Brentwood's restaurant row runs along San Vicente Boulevard. Patio tables, long lunches, and usually someone you know at the next table.

3:30

PM

Pickup & practice

Afternoons revolve around school runs, tennis and practice. It's also when you learn which streets back up near Sunset, a detail we check before you buy.

6:30

PM

The coast at sunset

Roll down San Vicente and you're at the sand in about ten minutes. Few luxury neighborhoods put the canyon and the Pacific this close together.

8:00

PM

Back up the hill

Dinner in the Village, then home. North of Sunset the streets go quiet early: dark skies, canyon air, and very little through-traffic.

Brentwood Park

Flat, wide estate lots on tree-canopied streets just north of San Vicente. Gated drives, deep setbacks, tennis courts and pools.

Mandeville Canyon

A long, rural canyon road. Acreage, privacy, horses, and the feeling of being far out of the city while staying in it.

Crestwood Hills

A mid-century landmark: post-war modernist homes by A. Quincy Jones and Whitney Smith, with canyon and ocean views.

Kenter Canyon

Hillside streets above Sunset with view homes and a top-rated elementary school close by.

Brentwood Glen

South of Sunset near the 405. Smaller, walkable streets with a tight-knit, family feel.

Brentwood Village

Condos and townhomes near San Vicente and Barrington. Lock-and-leave living a walk from everything.

PRIVATE CLUBS

Brentwood Country Club is in the neighborhood, with The Riviera just over the line in the Palisades.

SCHOOLS

Private campuses like Brentwood School and The Archer School for Girls, plus sought-after public options. Boundaries vary, so we verify.

OUTDOORS

Canyon trails, the San Vicente median, and the Santa Monica coast all within a short drive.

AN ARCHITECT'S NOTE

In Brentwood the lot is often worth more than the house. Before you buy, we look at slope, setbacks and hillside rules to tell you what you can realistically build, add or rebuild.

Schematic, not to scale. Enclave edges are approximate.

Compass Advantage.

Why the largest brokerage in the country gives you an edge, from private listings to AI-driven tools.

AMRE

COMPASS

The tools are standard. How we use them isn't.

Every Compass agent has the same platform. Access alone doesn't win a house. What matters is knowing which tool answers which question and how to read what comes back. Same platform, different operator.

Private Exclusives

An off-market home shared agent-to-agent before it lists. Visibility is the easy part. We work the relationships behind these listings so you hear about the right one early.

Compass CMA

AI-powered comparables, in real time. The number is only as good as the comps chosen and the adjustments made. That judgment is ours, and it sets what your offer should actually be.

Compass Collections

A shared visual workspace, not everything on the market, an edited set built around your criteria. Compare properties, watch price and status changes live, and bring in whoever else is weighing in.

Compass Search

Sorts by features, amenities, and Compass-exclusive listings. We build the saved searches and tune them as your criteria sharpen. The filters that matter aren't the ones a portal offers.

The advantage is judgment, not access.

Revolutionizing real estate with cutting-edge technology.

Investing billions in tech to find your next home

You deserve an agent who has the world's best real estate technology keeping them one step ahead. That's why we chose Compass, a forward-thinking brokerage where the technology of the future is changing outcomes today. Not only has Compass invested over $1.5B dollars in tech over a 10-year period, but we continue to spend more than $100M annually on research and development to help our agents make buying easier for you.

A 29K+ Network of Top Agents Nationwide. Buying successfully isn't just about what you know, but who you know. When it comes to your next home purchase, Compass has a strong, connected network. In 2023, 17.5% of Compass transactions resulted directly from referrals to Compass, demonstrating the ability of our agents to help clients navigate markets everywhere at the highest standards.
